ANNOUNCEMENTS Breed Theatre.

From the top strata of English so iety to the lowest depths of the miniature underworld in South African cities goes the story of "Wild Honey," a Universal-Jewel attraction starring Priscilla Dean, which comes to the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday,

"Wild Honey" was written as a novel by Cynthia Stockley and filmed at Uni-versal City under the direction of Wesversal City under the direction of Wesley Ruggles. Supporting the star are such widely known players as Robert Ellis. Wallace and Noah Beery. Raymond Blathwayt. Percy Challenger, Lloyd Whitlock. Heien Raymond, Landers Stevens, Carl Stockdale, C. J. Frank and Henry De Roy.

Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor at Universal City, was assigned to prepare it in continuity for Miss Dean. Special pains were taken in the picturization of the story to preserve the intensely dramatic structure of the plot. As I was filmed the story presented it players with a gamut of varied acting opportunities. The cast made full use of every detail of the narrative in creating a histrionic masterpiece. page it in continuity for Miss Dean. Scarcely less important is the supporting cast with which Mr. Ziegfeld has surrounded the leading figure in the play. Such names as Norman Trevor, Earle Foxe, Tyrone Power and Henry Stephenson are sufficiently important in the amusement world to individually issure the success of any production, whether on the stage or screen, and yet this array of theatrical taleful has been combined by the producer in this one production.

A two real drama and a very funny omedy will also be included.
